GRAND ISLE John "Dick" Adams of Grand Isle puts finishing touches on his carving of two chickadees.

Grand Isle Man Portrays Wildlife Through Carvings

The atmosphere is informal in Dick Adams's Grand Isle workshop. A baby lamb totters against the wood stove where it is quickly snatched up by a child dashing through. Dogs, kittens and rabbits stay into the work area or are carried in by children stopping to watch their father at work. Located just behind the kitchen, the workshop is a place where conversation flows and visitors are welcome.

It is also the place where the blocks of wood stacked in the corner are transformed into breath-taking wildlife studies by Adams. Each carving that he does is more than just a representation of a bird or an animal—it is an actual life scene astonishing in its detail and precision.

A bog lemming bares two tiny ivory teeth as it glances over its shoulder at an owl hovering over it with claws poised ready to snatch. A mother canvasback duck shelters four babies under its wings as a fifth flees from the outstretched jaws of an approaching turtle. And just completed on the workbench are two tiny chickadees clinging in lifelike splendor to a knarled branch.

It is readily apparent that Adams is a man who delights in what he is doing. "I've enjoyed doing them all. Any carving that I do, I hate getting

Letter to the Editor

To the Editor:

Students of CCV and others are wondering what's going to happen next. CCV is carrying on educational business as usual in the county through this Spring '79 term. Relative to the following year, I've received some clarification:

1. The regional staff [Grand Isle, Franklin and Lamoille Counties], has been cut back from 12 members to eight. Most of these are part time; I, for instance, am and have been, half-time.

2. We will be expected to provide services in the same communities as before, even though staff and offices are cut back.

3. At this time we are not expecting major cutbacks in other areas of the budget such as teacher pay, office supplies, phones or mileage.

Right now, in addition to regular program maintenance, we are engaged in planning for Fall '79. At this point, the regional staff is planning for no redistribution of services. Rather, what we see is a cutback in the amount of service that each community will be able to receive. Grand Isle County, for instance, usually has been offered about nine courses. There will probably, based on our current perception, be two or three fewer offerings.

How, and if, the Work/Study aid program for students will be affected is not yet clear, but President Bilicic assured me that he would be looking carefully at the fair distribution of this important financial aid opportunity, so that it would not become clustered in the larger sites.

Degree Planning students and Enrolled students, working toward that status will continue to receive top priority in the college.

It is a difficult time for everyone connected with CCV because of the extent of the unknowns that still remain. I hope that a lot of questions will be answered during the next month as the staff begins to plan the Fall program under the new conditions. During May and June, I'll be passing on information to our students and to the community at large through your newspaper. The community deserves to know the full situation at all times. Without their response to the petition, there's be nothing at all to write about CCV today.

TV REPORT - Insiders report that NBC boss Fred Silverman and Tom Snyder had a big fight in a popular Beverly Hills restaurant recently. The gents did, in fact, have a verbal go at one another, but no tables were overturned. A couple of days after the altercation, Fred and Tom had a quiet lunch together and now everything between them seems to be okay, with Snyder expected to sign a new three-year contract when his present deal with the network expires in December. From the Grand Isle County Health Council
SOME "WHAT IF'S" ABOUT MEDICATION

What if your friend had what seems to be the same illness and she offers you some left-over medication that worked well for her?

Don't take it! Regardless of your friend's good intentions, taking medicine prescribed for someone else is a serious mistake. Her prescription was written for her on the basis of HER age, HER weight, and HER physical condition. In addition to the possibility that it may be the wrong medication for you, drugs do lose potency with age and the drugs she's offering may have lost potency and become ineffective. Only your doctor can determine what medication is best for you and...how often and how long you should take it.

What if you go to another physician and he prescribes another medication for you?

That's fine, but make certain that you tell him about the prescribed medications you are already taking. Some medicines - prescription and non-prescription, may interact with each other when mixed together in your body and interfere with therapy. You should also remember to tell every doctor you see about the other medications that have been prescribed for you, so that each can include them on your medical records.

Outdoors with B.G.

On the last Saturday in April, the 28th this year, fisherman can try for any Vermont fish except bass and sturgeon. Bass season doesn't open until the second Saturday in June, the 9th, and sturgeon are protected year around.

Lake Champlain northern pike have no closed season, a daily limit of 10 and no minimum length. And for those who don't realize it, every spring from March 25 through May 25, it is legal to shoot them in Champlain with firearms, deer rifles and shotguns included. There are relatively few participants and this practice is not good for the species. But the rest of you sportfishermen are content to go along with it, so the archaic law stays on the books. Fish and Game tried to eliminate it a few years ago, and did briefly, but almost immediately, the department took a sound trouncing on the matter. The old law was reinstated by the Legislature and even expanded. In this day and age when sportsfishing is paramount it doesn't even make sense. But it is legal, and evidently not enough people care about wasting our pike and pickerel to change the law.

Getting back to happier things, big northern pike provide a lot of sport on light tackle--and good eating too. I often refer to them as the "poor man's musky." We have a pretty good supply of northern pike in spite of things above. Pickerel too are real scrappers in large size, especially on a fly rod or light spinning rod. If you don't know how to dress out the Y-bone, write to Fish and Game in Montpelier asking for the "pickerel sheet" which gives step by step procedure for great, completely bone-free filets.

Both pickerel and northerns are through spawning now, but they are still pretty much in the same general areas where spawning took place. If water levels are down, they'll move out to somewhat deeper water along edges of weedy margins, brush lined banks or flooded woodland. That's where you should try for them first. Chances are their stomachs still will be pretty much empty, but any day now, they'll become revenious and savage, trying to make up for lost time.

Newcomers to fishing for the "Esos" family should be forewarned about their many sharp teeth. Northerns and muskies are sometimes referred to as freshwater barracudas. Take along a big net or use a billy club to quiet them so you can get them up the shore or into a boat.

There is little interference from weeds now, but weedless lures help when they have to go through root and brush tangles. Any lure causing a lot of fuss on the surface or action below will take northerns or pickerel. Catching them isn't automatic by any means. They can be a sulky, stubborn lot of times. And when you strike, strike hard. These fish are hard mouthed. Often, it seems, they just clamp onto a lure and later open that big mouth and toss it just when you're sure the battle is going your way.

The state record (since 1969) for pickerel is 6 lbs. 4 oz., but two to four pounders are pretty common. The northern pike record is 30 lbs. 8 oz. Eight to ten pounders are taken fairly often early and late in the season.

Short tip. This year try fishing different areas in the state. Plan a trip using the free "Fishing Guide and Map" published by Fish and Game. Request one from your local tackle shop, a warden or biologist, or from Vt. Fish and Game Department, I & E Section, Montpelier, Vt. 05602.

★NEXT WEEK'S★ HOROSCOPE

By Clay R. Pollan

FOR WEEK BEGINNING MON., APRIL 30, 1979

If your birthday occurs this week... your strong personality, with its ability to make friends among powerful people and subordinates alike, propels you to a position of authority.

♈ Aries | Mar. 21 - Apr. 19 | Pluto ☿

This is bound to be an extravagant week. There's danger that you'll indulge in extravagant impulse buying which lands you in the red. Expect restrictions. Also expect to overcome them. Respect powerful friends who favor you. It's your turn to treat.

♉ Taurus | Apr. 20 - May 20 | Venus ♀

Try and gather your thoughts together and center attention on making necessary changes in your surroundings. The study of astrology could enable you to see the greater picture. Some of your abilities may receive wider recognition. Pay attention to your dreams.

♊ Gemini | May 21 - June 20 | Mercury ☿

Although there's no indications of financial hardship this week, very little easy money will come your way. Open up inactive accounts. Get a clear picture of your assets. Welcome opportunity for change, travel, variety. You can overcome unexpected opposition.

♋ Cancer | June 21 - July 22 | Moon ☾

Stress is on news starts and added independence. Social activity will increase. You'll get around more and see new people. Contacts you make now will prove meaningful in the near future. Something unforeseen happens. Brace yourself; be ready to deal quickly.

♌ Leo | July 23 - Aug. 22 | Sun ☼

Circumstances you hadn't envisaged will come into play during this period. Don't count too much on things going according to plan. You may be disappointed over the results of an application or letter. A letdown may occur. Keep clear of gossips.

♍ Virgo | Aug. 23 - Sept. 22 | Mercury ☿

There are many important things to do this week, many important talks to take part in. Wisdom is needed and you'll rise to the occasion. A dip into the past, a visit to old haunts, provides happy nostalgic memories. Tackle needed repair jobs.

♎ Libra | Sept. 23 - Oct. 22 | Venus ♀

A fine, rewarding week. Your impressive charm and efforts will be appreciated. Do your duty toward all who have a right to expect aid from you. Adjustments may have to be made in current projects. Efforts to beautify your home will be successful.

♏ Scorpio | Oct. 23 - Nov. 21 | Mars ♂

You may be slightly depressed and gloomy at times this week. The awful things you worry about won't happen. Pull yourself up by your bootstraps and get your second wind. Secret talks may mean a change in your finances—for the better. Concentrate.

♐ Sagittarius | Nov. 22 - Dec. 21 | Jupiter ♃

Be determined. Don't give up. Try again. Rid your life of the small things that hold you back. Don't waste time with idlers or let yourself be imposed upon. Watch your behavior towards someone in a position of authority. Travel is favored.

♑ Capricorn | Dec. 22 - Jan. 19 | Saturn ♄

An old romantic interest may be revived. You won't be sure what your feelings are. Beware disclosing your innermost thoughts. A dream could give you guidance, if interpreted correctly. Do things in style if you plan to make a romantic conquest.

♒ Aquarius | Jan. 20 - Feb. 18 | Uranus ♅

Be ready for surprises that can mean a world of improvement in your prospects. Rushing is one thing that can defeat your purposes. Slow down; eat slowly. Don't tax your digestive tract. Stress independence without arrogance. Get a health checkup.

♓ Pisces | Feb. 19 - Mar. 20 | Neptune ♆

The main need is to have patience and persistence in pushing plans and projects now in the works. Beware of people who dodge work and responsibility. Don't let anyone hold back your progress. Finish what you start. Refuse to be discouraged by unfair competitors.

Peach wood is believed to make good divining rods.

Dick Adams poses with two of the carvings that he has completed during the past year.

started. I keep putting it off; but once the birds start taking shape and looking how I want them to, the more enthused I get, and the longer and the harder I work," he explains.

According to Dick, the initial stages of the work are the most difficult for him. He begins a carving by making a series of scale drawings from a number of different angles. The drawings take about a week to complete, but Dick usually delays the actual carving for another month so that he can study the drawings and make any necessary changes. "This is the hardest part for me, says Adams, "because I'm not an artist."

Next he chooses the wood. Basswood is his favorite medium as it is durable and fine-grained, yet it can be banded and twisted. He uses cedar occasionally for inlaid feathers and working decoys, and white pine "because I have it around and want to use it up."

He cuts the basic pattern on a bandsaw and inserts blocks for the head, tail section, and any extended wing or portion where the grain of the wood needs to run in a different direction.

The carving is then roughed out with chisels, rasps, and gouges and finished with knives and sandpaper. Although Adams has an extensive selection of carving tools in his shop, he admits that he only uses four or five favorites—ones "that really seem to fit my hand."

"The carving itself is the easiest part for me," he comments. He depends exclusively on his sense of touch to determine symmetry and balance. Once he is satisfied with the bird's shape, he burns in each individual feather and detail and then paints the bird.

From start to finish, he estimates that the process takes about a month working evenings and weekends after his job at I.B.M. in Essex Junction is completed. But he cheerfully admits that in summer and during duck hunting season, little gets done unless the weather is terrible. Thus in the course of a year, he finishes from five to seven wildlife studies.

Recently, he has begun to work on more than one at a time to keep up with the demand and he always has a few in the planning stages. At present he is working on drawings for a pair of hummingbirds and a seagull.

Dick first began carving at the age of 12 when he worked on a merit badge for boy scouts. In the years that followed he worked at the craft sporadically. He has never taken any lessons in carving, preferring to experiment and to practice on his own. But he points out that he has gained valuable tips from various woodcarving books and from other carvers.

It was not until 1973 that he began to carve seriously. At that time, a friend, carver Dave Harrington, urged him to try his hand at miniature decoys, but Adams found himself dissatisfied with his efforts in this field. "I didn't want to copy anyone else," he remembers. So he began working on life-size birds and animals.

Now however, he specializes exclusively in birds. "I have done dogs, horse and gunstocks, but I shy away from these things now. I prefer birds, especially hawks, ducks, and owls, but I do any kind of bird."

Inspiration for his wildlife studies comes from two of his other hobbies—duck hunting and nature photography. In order to reproduce birds as accurately as possible, he maintains a large collection of wildlife photos and drawings. He also does extensive studies and measurements on both dead and live birds when available.

"I learn alot by examing them;" the Grand Isle carver pointed out, "things I would never guess from a picture." He goes on to say that he has just discovered that the inner eyelid of a seagull is a bright orange in color; a color that is also found at the rear of its throat. "That's something I needed to know as the seagull I am carving next will have its beak open."

Adams's attention to detail is evident in all of his carvings and has undoubtedly played a large part in the woodcarving awards that he has won at the local, national and international level. During this past year, two of his carvings took fourth place at the Canadian Nationals: one in the Professional Waterfowl division and one in the Professional Predator division. He also placed fourth in the Decorative Waterfowl division of the World

Dick maintains however that it is his goal to "put more detail in them--to try to make them as realistic as possible. I'm not completely satisfied yet; I can still learn to do better."

Snelling to Plant White Pine As Part of Green-Up Day

ARLINGTON In special ceremonies on Green Up Day, May 5, Governor Richard Snelling of Vermont will visit Arlington to plant a descendant of the fallen white pine tree which inspired the creator of the Great Seal of Vermont 200 years ago. This giant State Seal Pine, 175 feet tall, was located in a hillside park on Route 313, owned and maintained by the Arlington Garden Club. It was toppled by high winds in March of 1978.

Vermont historians, including the late John Clement, believed that the seal was designed by Ira Allen, who observed the huge pine from a window of the home of Thomas Chittenden, Vermont's first governor, who lived in Arlington during the Revolutionary period. A dominant feature of the Great Seal is a pine tree with no leading branches, a distinction shared with the Arlington pine, which also had no leading branches. Historians speculate that the 14 branches on the State Seal Tree anticipates Vermont's entry into the Union in 1791 as the 14th State.

The stump of the State Seal Pine remains. The wood was salvaged by the Department of Forests and Parks and cut into ovals for distribution to Vermont schools, libraries and historical societies. Other segments of the tree were kiln dried and returned to the Arlington Garden Club. The sapling that will be planted by the Governor has been selected from among several saplings in the area where its enormous ancestor once stood, and will be transplanted near the remaining stump. Historic site markers will be erected to inform the public of the significance of the hillside.

CHAMBER OF COMMERCE

The next meeting of the Rouses Point-Champlain Chamber of Commerce has been scheduled for Thursday, April 26th. At the group's previous meeting, a letter was read from an interested party in Detroit, Michigan, asking for Chamber brochures regarding this area.

Discussions were held on the recent raising of tolls on the Rouses Point-Alburg bridge as Canadians who stay in this area during the summer and do a lot of commuting via the bridge to and from Vermont, have been complaining about the added cost of travelling over the bridge and the inability to get books of bridge tickets. The Canadians feel they are being discriminated against because of this sales policy, and President Peter Nietupski agreed to write Leo Kelly, Chairman of the Bridge Commission regarding the matter.

Mark Barie reported on the proposed Map Directory being considered by the Chamber.

It was also reported that various organizations will be contacted to help with the Clean-Up in the two villages in conjunction with the Pride Committee, headed by Hazel Taft.

Henny Chapman gave a report from the Events Committee, concerning previously held events and possible fund raisers, such as a Costume Halloween Party.

Putting up flags in the two villages during the holidays was discussed also, and it was suggested that Pete Nietupski and Darrell Lintner contact businessmen in the area to find out how many would be interested in participating in this project.

The Fishing Contest scheduled for May 26th-June 3rd was brought up and it was noted that Sherb House would handle the entries with an assist from the Tackle Shop and McDonough's Sporting Goods Store. A $2.00 registration fee will be charged and the Chamber agreed to sponsor the contest.

The holding of sailboat races on Lake Champlain was brought up and it was reported that three marina owners seemed favorable to the idea, while another marina was to be contacted and the Power Squadron would be asked to assist with the races. It was suggested that August would be a good time to hold the event if it is approved by everyone.

ETV HIGHLIGHTS

WINOOSKI Carol Burnett is guest for two nights on THE DICK CAVETT SHOW beginning Wednesday at 7:30p.m. She has just finished filming Robert Altman's movie "Health," which also features Dick Cavett.

The final play in the SHAKESPEARE PLAYS series airs Wednesday at 8p.m. John Stride stars in "Henry VIII," with Timothy West as Wolsey and Claire Bloom as Katherine of Aragon. The drama of power, envy and greed repeats Sunday at 3p.m.

GENERATION ON THE WIND Thursday at 9p.m. documents the planning and construction of the world's largest and most powerful windmill off the picturesque coast of New Bedford, Mass.

DICK CAVETT'S guest Friday at 7:30p.m. is Tom Conti, the British actor who has recently brought his London hit "Whose Life Is It Anyway?" to Broadway. Conti, who has been seen in such public television programs as "The Glittering Prizes" and "The Norman Conquests," plays a paralyzed man who fights for the right to end his life.

The producer is from Marlboro, Vt., on this week's INDEPENDENT PRODUCERS' SHOWCASE. Alan Dater's "It's a Love of the Land" tells the story of the homesteaders, sheep raisers, and dairy farmers who settled Vermont. The show airs Sunday at 7:30p.m.

GLOBAL PAPERS returns Sunday at 8p.m. with a three-part series called "Waging Peace." Part I looks at international techniques for dealing with conflicts that won't go away. Author Roger Fisher headlines the program, using Southern Lebanon to illustrate his theories.

The Clean Air Act of 1977 is used as an example of how a bill becomes law in AN ACT OF CONGRESS, a look inside the lobbying and legislating Sunday at 10p.m.

The debate over advertising aimed at young children becomes the subject of BILL MOYERS' JOURNAL Monday at 8p.m. Moyers remarks that it boils down to a view of children "as feeling, wondering, and wondrous beings to be handled with care" vs. the view of them "as members of a vast collective to be hustled."

The second of three GLOBAL PAPERS on "Waging Peace" is seen Monday at 9p.m. The startling, salubrious effects of mediation in domestic disputes are featured. Particularly emphasized is settling family disputes, even in divorce and child custody cases, outside of court if possible.

Quit Smoking Urges Local Cancer Crusade Head

SOUTH HERO What is the most important advice Sandy Wright of South Hero, President of the Grand Isle American Cancer Society Unit can offer to help protect oneself against cancer?

"My number one bit of advice is this: if you are a cigarette smoker - quit. If you don't smoke - don't start."

According to Mrs. Wright, there has been a 125 percent increase in lung cancer among American men over the last 25 years and the disease will be diagnosed in 82,000 men in 1979. Women, who have traditionally had a lower lung cancer rate are now dying of this disease in greater numbers because of their steadily increasing use of cigarettes. Between the 1950's and the mid-1970's, for example, lung cancer deaths among American women jumped 200 percent.

"So many people have heard the facts about the hazards of cigarettes that they may feel this is a tiresome bit of repetition," she said. "Also, there is a tendency to blame something else for the fact that approximately 112,000 Americans will get lung cancer this year. It's tempting to blame air pollution, but the real culprit is the cigarette habit."

In spite of the fact that the cigarette story has been well known since the famous Surgeon General's Report on the hazards of smoking in 1964, the incidence of lung cancer has increased.

"One of the more alarming trends," she said, "is the increased cigarette smoking among teenage girls. The number of girls who smoke a pack or more a day, quadrupled between 1964 and 1975. At least 30 percent of teenage boys also smoke."

The ACS has more than just the grim facts about the health consequences of cigarette smoking.

"The Grand Isle ACS unit is prepared to help people in the County quit smoking. We have practical information and a "quit kit." We believe that it's not enough to tell people about a health hazard. It's necessary to give them some help."

The fight against death from cigarette smoking is but one aspect of the ACS program designed to teach the public the facts about all forms of cancer. "We also support cancer research, provided free services for cancer patients and their families, and keep doctors, nurses and dentists informed of the latest advances in cancer diagnosis."

In 1827, the first railroad in the U.S. was built in Quincy, Mass.

Mail Carrier Exams Planned

ST. ALBANS The U.S. Postal Service has announced that an examination will be given next month for substitute rural carrier positions in the greater St. Albans area.

Francis W. O'Brien, director of the Burlington management center, said this morning that applications for the exam will be available in local postal installations on and after Monday, April 23. All applications must be completed and returned to the postal service no later than May 4. O'Brien said he expects the exam will be held in St. Albans during the latter part of May.

In making the announcement, O'Brien said that applicants must have a valid Vermont driver's license and must meet job requirements. Pay, he said, depends on the route to which a person is assigned. He emphasized that substitute rural carriers are assigned to replace regular rural carriers when they are absent. Normally, he said a rural carrier works six days a week and is absent only for annual leave, sick leave and, if eligible, military leave.

Interested persons should seek additional information and application forms at their local post offices.

ETV AUCTION NEARS

WINOOSKI All around Vermont ETV's viewing area, volunteers known as "gogetters" are out asking for donations of new merchandise, art, antiques, crafts and certificates for services to be auctioned off during the fifth annual "Great TV Auction," May 19-26. The counties of Vermont, and Montreal have had local kickoffs - combination training sessions and pep rallies to get volunteers started on their search.

Some of the items already donated for the eight-day fundraiser are an antique stamp vending machine and a rare postage stamp, a microcomputer, two wood stoves, a pair of Buddy Rich's drumsticks, a Quadractor work vehicle, two Husky pups, a home video recorder, and a ride in a balloon. By the time the Auction goes on the air, several thousand items worth anywhere from $30 to $4,000 will be ready to go before the cameras. Those who have not been contacted by a volunteer, but wish to contribute to the Auction should call the Auction office at (802) 656-4323. Grand Isle County Chairman of the event is Lynda Clark, who can be reached by calling 372-8386.
