ART SHOW AUGUST 14+15 GRAND ISLE SCHOOL 10 A.M. TO 5 P.M.

Tough Primary Fights Seen in Local Representative and Senate Races

GRAND ISLE Less than a week into the primary election campaign, the local races for two state representative seats and one state senate position are already promising to be the most interesting in several years.

Nancy S. Tracy of South Hero has emerged as the sole Republican candidate for the state senate seat, and the right to oppose the winner of the three man race in the Democratic primary. There, incumbent Senator Charles Delaney of Colchester is matched against pharmacist Thomas McGregor, also of Colchester, and Walter Trepanier, a Grand Isle electrician.

Mrs. Tracy insures the county of having a candidate in the general election again this year. In 1974 she was narrowly defeated by Delaney in her first attempt for the senate seat 2408-2110, while losing to Delaney only in his hometown of Colchester.

The three Democratic candidates have also been before the voters in the recent past. McGregor was elected to the Vermont House of Representatives. while Delaney was gaining the senate seat. Trepanier is familiar to Grand Isle Town voters, where he was defeated in 1974 in his campaign for Justice of the Peace as a member of the "Good Will" Party.

In the race for the two representative seats from the district composed of Isle La Motte, Alburg, North Hero, South Hero, Grand Isle and Georgia six different possibilities will be offered to the voters, while only four men are seeking office.

On the Republican ticket incumbents Alden Ballard of Georgia and Ray Poquette of Alburg are joined by newcomer John Curran of Grand Isle, while Poquette and Curran are both listed in the Democratic Primary along with Robert Pearl of Grand Isle. As reported in our last issue, Representative

Poquette had cross-filed and was running as a

Democrat, in addition to his former status as a Republican. After the publication of that last issue only one day remained for filing petitions, during which Curran also cross-filed and entered the Republican Primary.

With three of the four candidates entered in the race from Grand Isle County, the county appears assured of having at least one county resident in the legislature.

In addition to the two incumbents, Pearl has also sought election to the legislature previously, having been most recently a candidate in the Democratic Primary in 1974. He formerly served a term as Grand Isle Town Agent and Grand Juror. For Curran, this will be a first try for the legislature and follows two successful campaigns to become Pearl's successor as Grand Isle Town Agent and Grand Juror in 1975 and 1976.

In the only local uncontested local election, incumbent High Bailiff Philip (Gimli) Mead has filed on both tickets in the primaries. He was first elected as an Independent candidate in 1974.

North Hero Chosen

NORTH HERO The North Hero Elementary School's Career Education program has been selected as one of only four in Vermont to be presented at the 10th Annual Commissioner's National Conference on Career Education to be held at the Astrohall in Houston, Texas this Novermber. The North Hero program, the only elementary school program selected for its project which successfully involved both the school and the community members in its career education program, with extremely satisfactory results occuring.

Mrs. Helen Bullis 200 Pay Tribute to Helen Bullis

GRAND ISLE Some 200 friends and admirers of Mrs. Edmond (Helen) Bullis gathered at the Grand Isle United Methodist Church Sunday afternoon to pay tribute to the long time Grand Isle resident. Several guests from throughout the county and as far away as. Florida came to pay tribute to Grand Isle's first lady.

Mrs. Bullis was presented with a money tree and several other gifts for her service to both church and community.

A highlight of the afternoon's festivities was a display of several of Mrs. Bullis' paintings, which she claims she painted despite being unable to draw, and taking up the art at the tender age of 16.

Mrs. Bullis was also honored earlier this year when she was named the Honorary Chairman of the Grand Isle Bicentennial Committee.

Letters to the Editor

Rarely does the average citizen personally know a candidate running for Governor of his state. However, I had the great privilege of working with Dick Snelling as First Chairman and then as member of the Board of Y.M.C.A. Camp Abnaki in 1971 when we raised $200,000 to build a new dining hall kitchen, Senior Village 6 cabins. Rebuild sanitation system, add new equipment, etc. As campaign chairman, I appreciated very much his ability, know how, interest, integrity, and his overall grasp of how things should be done.

When he decided to run for governor, I was only too happy to help in any way I could because I feel we need a man like Dick in Montpelier to really implement the programs that have been established.

When Gov. Salmon called a special session of the legislature for the purpose of raising taxes to reduce the states indebtedness, Dick said that the debt would not be that great, no new taxes needed, and as everyone knows he has been proven correct.

He started out as a young man and borrowed money and has developed a most successful business, Shelburne Industries. I feel he can help put the State on a successful business basis as well.

Dick will be in the Islands on August 19th. Will be at Grand Isle at 3:00 p.m. and at South Hero at 4:00 Will greet folks at the Turkey Supper at p.m. Get together with Al Schmidt at 4:00 and will greet parents at the Day Camp at 6:30. He will be meeting additional folks along the way. Complete itinerary in next week's Islander.

Dear Sir,

The officers and members of the Rouses Point Fire Department would at this time like to thank you and your paper for the excellent coverage you gave us on promoting our July 4th celebrations.

To bring you up to date, we can safely state that this year we had one of the largest turnouts ever. The whole week of events were well attended with the giant parade, which lasted some 2 hours and 10 minutes bringing out the largest number of people.

Certainly we would not have done as well if it had not been for the kind of coverage you gave us for the 5 months in your paper.

Next year we would like to remind everyone that Rouses Point will be celebrating 100 years of its own existance, so plan to see big things from Rouses Point and we can assure you that we will be putting our best foot forward again for you, the visiting public.

'in the mean time, keep up the good work, for without papers like yours, fire departments like ours would not get the coverage you so ably gave us.

> Yours in Fire Safety, Lorne Ulley R.P.F.D.

County 4-H'ers Participate in Tri-County Show

BURLINGTON Thirty-eight 4-H Dairy members from Grand Isle, Chittenden, and Franklin Counties showed 47 dairy animals at the annual Tri-County 4-H Dairy Show held Monday, August 9th, at the U.V.M. Farm Arena in Burlington.

Judging the dairy show was Chris Woelfel, Extension Dairyman with the U.V.M. Extension Service. Three members from Chittenden County showed beef animals, with Steele Griswold of Burlington serving as Judge.

Grand Isle County had 24 4-H members showing 31 animals, Chittenden County had 11 members showing 11 animals and Franklin County had 3 members showing 5 animals.

Blue ribbon winners in Fitting and Showmanship and in Dairy Conformation will be listed next week.

State 4-H Dairy Show August 16

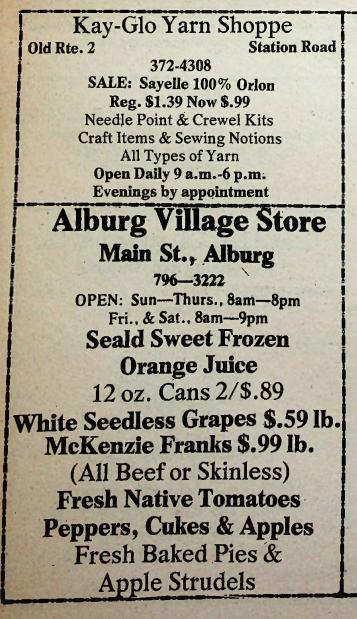

BURLINGTON 4-H Dairy members from all Counties in the State will meet at the U.V.M Farm arena in Burlington for the annual State 4-H Dairy Show.

To be eligible for the show, dairy members must have received at least a score of 60 on their dairy records and at least a red ribbon in animal conformation and in the fitting and showmanship classes at the Tri-County event.

4-H dairy members must also be 11 years of age on January 1, 1976. Everyone is invited to attend this state 4-H dairy show.

4-H'ers Prepare For CV Fair

NORTH HERO Area 4-H Clubs and members will feature many exhibits and a dairy show at the Champlain Valley Exposition again this year. The 4-H building will feature many club and action exhibits. The 4-H dairy show will be held Monday, August 30th starting at 9:30 a.m. We expect 80-100 4-H animals in the show. Be sure to look over the 4-H exhibits when you attend the C.V. Fair.

County Agent Bob White

White Returns from Summer School

NORTH HERO From July 5th through July 16th your County Agent Bob White attended summer school studying material handling systems with particular emphasis on waste handling.

The first four days were spent at U.V.M. hearing a variety of speakers covering all aspects of systems to handle all types of farm materials including feed and manure. All types of manure handling systems were seen including conventional stockers, dug out ponds, tanks and equipment to handle manure in various forms.

The two day forum at U.V.M. August 9 and 10 was a speaking program for the public as well as the twenty eight members taking the course. The last three days of the tour were spent visiting farms and research centers in New York State, including the Cornell and Agway Research Farms.

Although most of the farms visited were free stall milking parlor set-ups, I feel that conventional barns will be with us for quite some time. Conventional barns can be mechanized to handle manure easily and efficiently. Many dairymen are very interested in planning a manure handling system that will save all the nutrients and meet the environmental standards that will surely be with us in the future.

Candidates Visit North Hero

NORTH HERO A small but enthusiastic crowd attended the Meet-the-Candidates Day festivities held at the North Hero Community Hall on Sunday afternoon sponsored by the Grand Isle chapter of the Vermont Federation of Republican Women. The gathering drew such top GOP figures as candidates for governor William Craig, Richard Snelling; Lieutenant Governor hopefuls Doug Tudhope, T. Gary Buckley, as well as local representative hopefuls John Curran, Alden Ballard and Ray Poquette, and State Senatorial candidate Nancy Tracy.

Amid the political buttons, stickers and balloons, candidates addressed both state and local issues and dispensed their respective propaganda to several interested voters in attendance. Entertainment was provided by the Arm and Hammer String Band and a voter registration drive was held.

Alburg Social Notes

ALBURG The "Island Hoppers" Square Dance Club will give a demonstration at the South Alburg Church at 7:30 on August 14th. The program will be part of a bazaar being held on that day.

Copies of Alburg's Revised Town Plan and Alburg's proposed zoning regulations are available at the town clerk's office. Citizens of the town and village of Alburg are advised to obtain copies and read them as meetings will be held on both documents in early September.

Addison Field Days

NEW HAVEN Addison County will hold its annual Farm and Home Field Days on August 11-14 at their Field Day grounds in New Haven. A full program you would expect to find at any fair will be featured, including youth programs and exhibits, home economics exhibits, and farm exhibits and cattle shows.

Why not plan to attend.

TO THE VOTERS OF GRAND ISLE COUNTY

For openers I'd like to state that I am neither a politician or an organization man and I do not think like one. Other than a long membership in the Boy Scouts more years ago than I care to recall, I have never been a member of a fraternal organization or social club. Hopefully this lack of social contact may not be too damaging to my candidacy.

Recently I filed to run in the Democratic primary for state representative from the district comprised of Grand Isle County and the Town of Georgia. One of my opponents, incumbent Representative Ray Poquette of Alburg, a hitherto Republican Party stalwart cross-filed and will also run as a Democrat in the representative race for the two seats from the district.

I too have cross-filed and will run in both primaries. Using this paid political advertisement I want to explain why I cross-filed.

Originally, I had hoped to seek office as an Independent. However, the mechanics of the Vermont primaries are so constituted that an Independent is excluded and can first appear on a ballot only after the primaries have been held. This would virtually cut in half the time and opportunity for an Independent office seeker to campaign and address himself to the issues.

By filing in one primary and then cross-filing in another I will not have to show blind alliance to either party, and therefor will not have to lend support to other candidates or either party whom I do not feel would serve the best interests of our area.

EDITORIAL CONT.

EDITORIAL

Now that the political season is upon us, we are about to be hit with the so called "campaign issues" in our area. while there are indeed many relivant issues on which candidates may take a stand, most will elect instead to talk about some of the safer, more traditional gripes. This is an established tradition and has been almost universally used with an alarming amount of success.

However, on a local level at least, this year may prove tough for the major non-issue issues, as most of the candidates seem to be preaching the same sermon.

The traditional battle over the building of a new Lamoille River Bridge is certain to surface again this year, as it does every year. This is good, as everyone here seems to agree we need it. Actually, the candidates do too. Representatives Poquette and Ballard have come out in favor of the new bridge in the past, as have candidates Curran and Pearl. Senatorial candidates McGregor and Trapanier are new to the campaign trail in Grand Isle and kaven't stated their opinions to us, but candidate Tracy has long been in favor of a new bridge. Then there is our incumbent Senator, Mr. Myth, Charles Delaney. If Mr. Delaney really does exist, it seems a fair possibility that he hasn't realized that there even is a bridge connecting Grand Isle County and Colchester. Under normal circumstances Mr. Delaney would probably have noticed the "Gateway to Grand Isle" on one of his frequent visits to the district he represents, that is if he made frequent visits, which he does not.

EPISCOPAL CHURCH SERVICE

GRAND ISLE The Rev. Canon James Leswing of St. Paul's Cathedral, Burlington, will celebrate Holy Communion at the Lady Chapel on the West Shore Road, Grand Isle, Vt., at 10:30 a.m. on Sunday, August 15th.

At any rate, their seems little doubt that noone is going to come out and oppose a new bridge, and equally little probability that any of the candidates will get it built any quicker than the highway department has already planned.

Probably the second most often heard campaign promise will be to "Do something about the Lake Champlain Bridge Commission", that well known traveling circus, which is supposed to learn how to tell someone how to fix potholes in the two Lake Champlain Bridges between Vermont and New York by taking vacations to Paris and other places more exotic than either Vermont or New York.

Here again, we seem to find little in the way of conflict between the positions of the candidates. Curran, Tracy, Poquette and Ballard have all registered their disapproval of the Commission, and while I'm not sure, I doubt Mr. Pearl is in favor of the past performance of the trio of Dubie, Steady and Nadeau, or as they are better known to the taxpayers Do-buy, Spendy and Need-to-go.

Here again Mr. Delaney's opinion isn't known, and I think that pretty much speaks for itself.

In any case, the two issues you'll probably be hereing the most about aren't really in much dispute at all. Then there will be a cleaner Lake Champlain, a Better Fire Department and increased law inforcement protection at a reduced price, welfare reform and an increased voice in Montpelier for the county. All are areas of improvement that are attractive, and some candidates will work far harder on them than others, but it is doubtfull that any candidate will come out in opposition to them.

At this point it becomes a matter of guess as to what the candidates will really debate about, though I'm sure they'll figure out something.

EVERYBODY LOVES CHILI

No matter what part of the country you live in, bowl of spicy chili con carne has hearty appetite appeal any day in the year. Louisianians adapted this Southwestern specialty to their own tastes, spicing it generously with Tabasco pepper sauce – made for over 100 years in Avery Island, La. This recipe makes five quarts, enough for 12 servings, so it's the economical dish for informal Saturday night parties.

Lots of good ingredients go into the pot: ground beef, kidney beans, onion, canned tomatoes and tomato paste, plus seasonings. Whether you like your chili hot or mild, Tabasco lets you control the "heat." Measure the specified amount when preparing the recipe, and put the Tabasco bottle on the table so guests may add extra spice to taste.

Ladle the chili into soup plates and serve with salted crackers.

AVERY ISLAND CHILI POT

- 6 tablespoons butter or margarine
- 5 medium onions, sliced 3 pounds ground beef
- 2 tablespoons chili powder
- 1 tablespoon salt
- teaspoon paprika
- 3/4 teaspoon Tabasco pepper sauce
- 2 cans (1 pound 12 ounces each) tomatoes
- can (6 ounces) tomato paste cans (20 ounces each) kidney beans

Melt butter in a 6- to 8-quart saucepan; add onion and cook until tender but not brown. Add ground beef; sprinkle with chili powder, salt, paprika and Tabasco. Cook meat until brown, breaking up with a fork. Add tomatoes and tomato paste; cover and simmer 45 minutes. Add kidney beans; simmer 15 minutes longer. Yield: 12 servings (5 quarts).

Note: To freeze: Chili may be frozen after cooling to room temperature. To reheat: Let thaw at room temperature about 2 hours before heating.

The first Methodist minister to the Islands was sent here in 1792. The story told is he arrived in Milton in the late afternoon one summer day, near where the present Sand Bar Bridge is. The only way he say of getting to his newly assigned flock was to cross by raft. Twice the winds, we are told, drove him back, but on the third attempt he finally made landfall in South Hero.

Curran Dumps Delaney

GRAND ISLE John Curran, a candidate for representative from the Grand Isle County-Georgia district has blasted incumbent State Senator Charles Delaney for "his lack of interest in that district," since his election in 1974.

Curran, a candidate running on both the Republican and Democratic Tickets charged "Not only has Mr. Delaney completely ignored his constituancy outside of his hometown (Colchester), he has also repeatedly voted against the best interests of the residents of the remainder of the district.'

Curran, who made the charges in a Monday press release was particularly critical of Delaney's opposition to a bill that would have banned the non-farm use of phosphate detergents. Curran called this "one such example of his (Delaney's) lack of concern for this area," and went on to say that passage of the bill "would have helped impede the continued deterioration of the waters of Lake Champlain."

Claiming that he chose to file for election on both tickets so that he would not have to show "blind alliance" to either party, nor have to "lend support to other candidates of either party whom I do not feel would serve the best interests of the area," Curran finished his broadside by announcing that he would "not only refuse to work for Senator Delaney's re-election, but will actively work toward his deserved defeat in the September Primary.'

Delaney is a candidate for re-election in the district composed of Colchester and Georgia, and is being opposed in the Democratic Primary by Representative Thomas McGregor of Colchester and electrician, Walter Trepanier of Grand Isle. In his release Curran did not indicate whether he would support either of those candidates, or Republican candidate Nancy Tracy of South Hero.

MYSTERY HOUSE

Fllowing a long absence, our Mystery House Contest returns in this issue. Our last contest was won by Cam Forey of Isle La Motte, who had won 5 gallons of gas from Carson's market in Isle La Motte by correctly guessing the St. Lawrence home in Isle La Motte.

This week's Mystery House is still standing and is the home of one of our Island residents. To place your guess on the Mystery House simply call 372-6670 anytime after noon on Thursday. The first person with the correct answer will receive a certificate good for a free ham grinder at the Alburg Village Store in Alburg.

Anyone having any old pictures they'd like to share with our readers is asked to contact any Islander staff member, or to just send them to "The Islander", ATT. Mrs. Ramonah Devino, Islander Drive, Grand Isle, Vt. All photos will be returned.

Late Summer Gardening

Some extra gardening work on your part now can greatly extend the season and productivity of your garden. Also, good cultural practices followed now can greatly reduce the weed problems you will face next year.

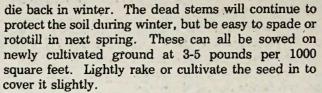

Each weed you let go to seed in the garden or in flower or shrub beds can produce literally the sands of seeds which can germinate next year. The greater your efforts at keeping these weeds from going to seed, the less will your weed problem be next season. Similarly, the area around the peremeter of your garden should be kept well mowed if at all possible.

Succession plantings are an important part of a productive long season garden. Lettuce, radishes, spinach and peas will all still have time to mature long before frost and give higher quality produce than chose grown in the heat of summer. Seed onions planted now will produce good sized sets by late fall to be dug and stored overwinter for replanting next spring.

A common complaint now is an excess of green and yellow summer squashes. Even if you can't use them all continue to pick before they are overmature. If not harvested regularly, the plants will soon stop developing new fruits.

Cover crops in gardens are a good way to use extra un-needed space and improve your soil at the same time. These crops will add valuable organic matter to the soil, protect the soil from erosion due to wind and rain and compete with those late summer weeds to eliminate the need for cultivating.

Rye will regrow in spring so it's excellent for adding lots of organic matter. But, unless you have your plot plowed or rototilled with a large machine, it may be difficult to get rid up in spring. Annual rye forage oats, and buckwheat all will grow vigorously now, but

Grand Isle Gardener

During the dry periods we often get in late summer (not so for this summer) both late season vegetables and cover crops will benefit from irrigation. Soil moisture is needed for the seeds to germinate. Newly planted seed will just sit in cultivated soil until some moisture is provided. Once established the need for water is much less as the roots are able to grow deep into the soil.

An error crept into last week's column and should be corrected. Blossom-end rot of tomatoes will be aggravated, not reduced, by high rates of nitrogen fertilizers.

Next week: Why do Mums bloom in the fall?

Healthful Hints

FROM THE GRAND ISLE COUNTY HEALTH COUNCIL

A number of plants, poison ivy, poison oak, poison sumac, substances which when in contact with the skin may produce a reddening of the skin that may lead to blister formation. These areas itch intensely, and may swell. In severe cases with large areas affected the person may become ill with a generalized swelling of the body.

If a poisonous plant comes into contact with your skin, wash that area thoroughly with a strong soap and water--do not use alcoholic solutions as this will only spread the irritation. There are many commercial preparations that help to relieve the itching. Swelling can be reduced by the application of cold compresses.

The best protection, however, is to wear covering clothing when going into fields or other areas that may contain such plants.

The first Grand Isle Town Meeting was held at the home of Isaac Atkins March 1, 1799. At this meeting it was voted to raise a tax of one per cent of the grand list of the town, tax to be payable in wheat or corn.

Cancer Society Releases Cookbook

MONTPELIER What did George Washington's wife Martha serve her guests? Answer: Beef Steak and Kidney Pie.

Eleanor Roosevelt remembered the very First Lady of our Land with a Martha Washington Crab Soup.

Abigail Adams and Jane Pierce liked sea food. Raw oysters were placed on the menu by John Adams' wife. Raw clams were favored by the First Lady of President Pierce--but there is a red cocktail sauce to accompany these and other fruits of the sea.

Beef Tenderloin graced the tables of Julia Grant, Helen Taft and Florence Harding. This would have gone well with Jacqueline Kennedy's mushroom and chives sauce.

Heads of palm and watercress with a light lemon and oil dressing were handed down by Pat Nixon.

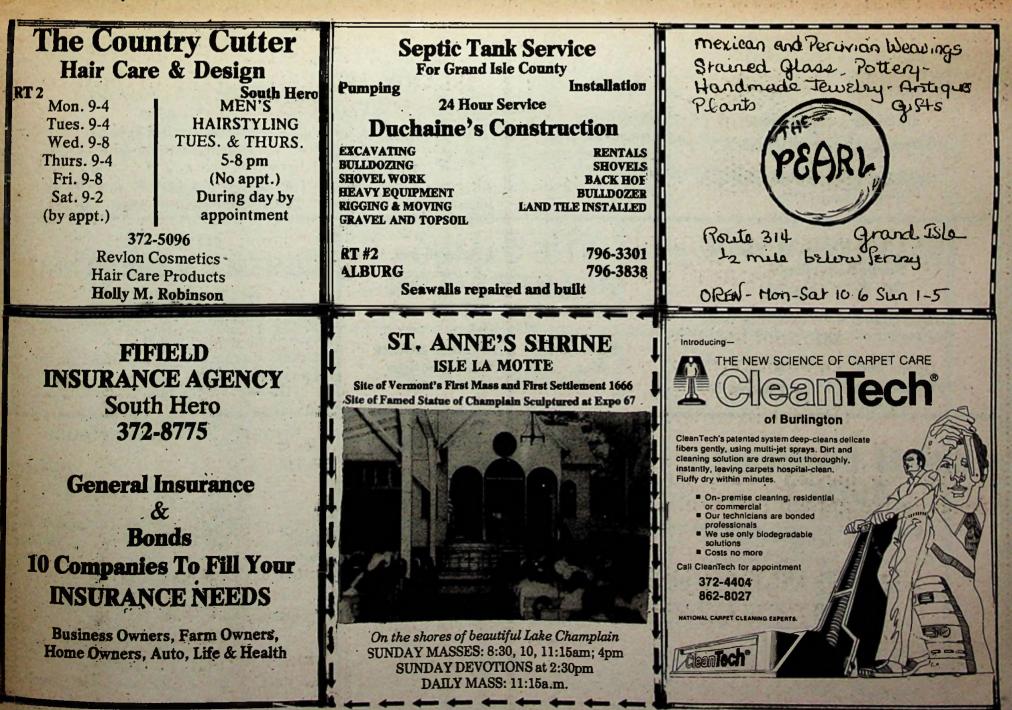

Betty Ford contributed a Strawberry Blitz Torte to these and other recipes of First Ladies, contained in an American Revolution Bicentennial Momento booklet which is available by sending a two dollar contribution to the American Cancer Society, Vermont Division, Drawer C, Montpelier, Vermont 05602.

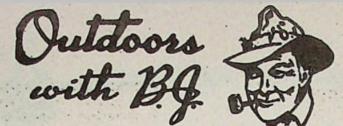

The Cookbook is being distributed in a joint efforts of the American Cancer Society and the American Legion to win freedom from cancer.

Historians and epicureans will find this a valuable addition to their history or cookbook collections.

Superintendents Office Closed

NORTH HERO The office of the Superintendent of Schools in North Hero will be closed from August 16th through August 30th. Messages may be left by calling 796-3311 or 372-4554.

What's the best outdoor camera? The one you will use most is the best answer I can think of.

Your favorite sport may be hunting, fishing, hiking, bird-watching, bicycling or whatever...but no matter what suits you best, there are times when you would like to record things on film. A campfire gathering, results of a fishing trip, or maybe a scenic view from a mountain top are typical shots that would be well worth having in a photo album or slide show.

A lot of people don't have cameras with them when outdoors because they feel a camera is too cumbersome or too complicated, but some recent innovative changes in the camera industry have done a lot to eliminate those problems. For most active, outdoor people, one of the new pocket-model cameras is the closest to an ideal picture machine ever to appear on the market.

Using 110 size film in black and white, color print, or colored slides, these new cameras are as easily slipped into a pocket as a pack of cigarettes. You may have a single-lens reflex camera with several interchangeable lenses, but you still ought to have a pocket model to take along when you know you will not carry the more bulky rig.

The make probably doesn't matter too much. Several companies are selling the mini-cameras. Some are made in foreign countries, and others are made right in the United States.

Lower priced models tend not to have lenses that are as sharp as the big dollar models. Even so, today's less expensive pocket cameras are producing photos that are often sharper than photos from larger format, inexpensive cameras of a few years ago.

One of the latest features offered on pocket cameras is the built-in telephoto converter. With just a flick of the finger, the camera converts from normal viewing to telephoto viewing. You can stand 50 feet from your subject and take a picture that will make the subject look about half that distance. It's primarily intended for cropping extraneous material out of the picture, but one of the obvious advantages in outdoor photography is that wildlife shots are a lot easier with telephoto equipment.

Most, if not all, of the new pocket models have flash capability. The trend seems to be toward using the stacked, multiple shot cubes. Flash is important, and not just for night photos. A lot of daylight photos are better with "fill-in" flash. Bright sunlight creates harsh shadows under the brim of a hat. Add flash to take care of the shadows and you've got a much more pleasing shot. Taking pictures on cloudy days or under a forest canopy are two other situations where flash is helpful.

Hot weather brings a potential hazard to the photographer. Film, and especially colored film, is damaged by high temperatures. Never leave your camera in a closed vehicle with the summer sun beating down on it unless you cover the camera with good insulating material such as a down parka. Another solution is to put the camera in a dry, insulated beverage cooler.

Your local camera store is likely to have new pocket cameras in stock. The best way to decide which model best suits your needs is to take a look at them. Compare the features of each against the cost, and give one a try. The outdoor photos you collect over the years will be well worth the investment.

SHORT TIP: Major camera repairs often cost close to replacement prices. Keep the camera dry. Lightweight inexpensive roll-up, self-locking bags should be a must for a camera in a canoe, boat, or wet weather.

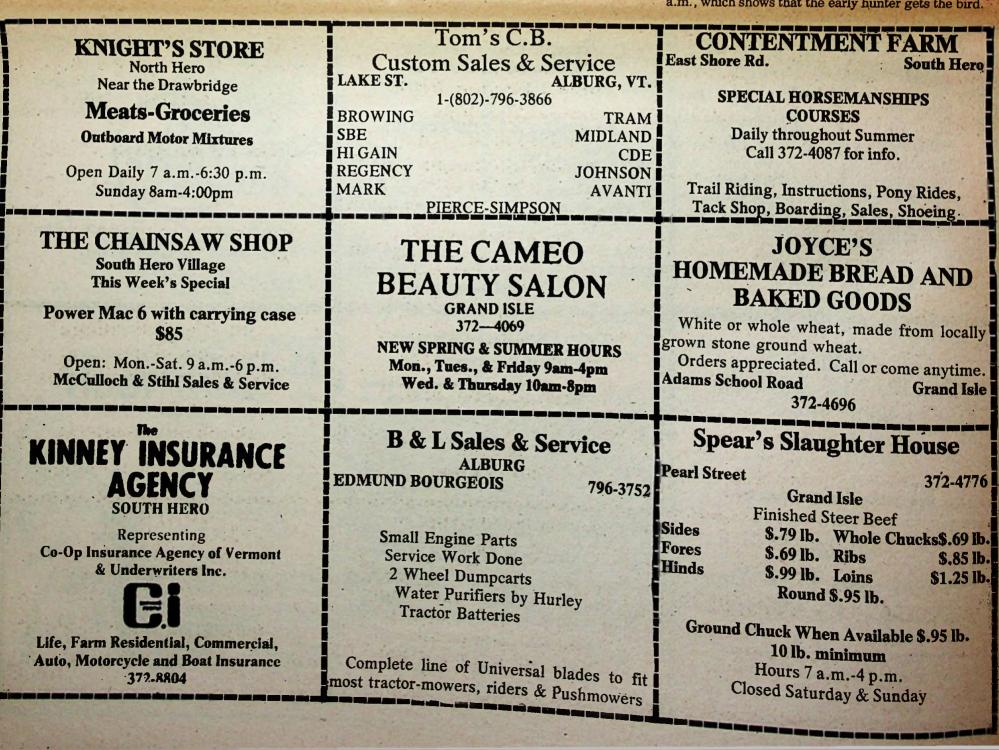

Turkey Hunters Help and Information Gathering

Turkey hunters show a strong concern for the welfare of Vermont's big game bird according to Jeff Wallin, the Fish and Game Department's district 2 game biologist and turkey project leader.

The department has had very good success over the years with bear hunters who have contacted wardens or biologists so bear could be examined for sex, age, reproductive and health information. For the past eight years, over half of the bear taken annually have been individually examined. Turkey hunters are the latest group to show good cooperative spirit in helping the department gather information on wildlife.

In the past three spring seasons over 80 percent of the turkey hunters took the time to fill out and send in a questionnaire on their activities. Vermont's first fall turkey season was held in 1975. Wallin asked successful fall turkey hunters if they would voluntarily supply one wing from their turkey for biological analysis. A total of 110 hunters complied, or 79 percent of the 139 who took turkeys. Wallin could determine the sex and juvenile or adult status of each bird by looking at its wing.

Some of the information gathered from the 1976 spring turkey season may be interesting to those who study the big bird. The average live weight of adult gobblers was 18.5 pounds, with the heaviest tipping the scales at 26 pounds. Juvenile gobblers averaged 14.5 pounds live weight. A total 6,228 turkey hunting permits were issued to license holders who requested them. Of these, 88.8 percent were residents and 11.2 percent were nonresidents. The overall success rate was 2.4 percent. The art of using a turkey call to lure a gobbler within range is very important as shown by the fact that 84 percent of the successful hunters used them. Almost 68 percent of the birds were taken between the 5:30 a.m. legal starting time and 7:30 a.m., which shows that the early hunter gets the bird.

Wildlife Courses Offered

CASTLETON Vermont teachers who want to learn more about wildlife management, water resources, hunter safety, wild flowers, and environmental education will have a good chance to do so this summer. An intensive one-week, live-in course on these subjects will be given at Castleton State College, August 22 through 27.

Sponsored by the Vermont Fish and Game Department and Castleton State College, the course offers 3 credit hours at $56 for the week, including room and board. The low fee is made possible because the Fish and Game Department is underwriting much of the cost.

The workshop will be held at the Green Mountain Conservation Camp on the shores of Lake Bomoseen in Hydeville.

Interested Vermont teachers should apply through their school superintendents who will be responsible for nominations. Further information is available from Castleton State College, Castleton, Vt. 05735 (phone 468-5611).
